Indira Global School of Business

The month of January marks a significant phase in the academic journey at Indira Global School of Business, blending reflection, responsibility, and renewed momentum. As we step into a new calendar year, this edition of the Campus Herald captures the essence of experiential learning, academic rigor, cultural values, and professional development that define life at IGSB.

January began on a purposeful note with the Winter Internship Program, offering students meaningful exposure to industry practices and real-world challenges. Such initiatives bridge the gap between classroom learning and corporate expectations, reinforcing our commitment to outcome-based education. Alongside this, the smooth conduct of the SPPU Semester I and III examinations reflected the discipline, preparedness, and academic integrity upheld by both students and faculty.

The Faculty Development Program organized during the month stands as a testament to IGSB's belief that quality education begins with empowered educators. The exchange of ideas on experiential learning, leadership, customer centricity, and AI integration has further strengthened our teaching-learning ecosystem.

Cultural and national celebrations such as Marathi Bhasha Vachan Din, Vasant Panchami, and Republic Day reminded us that management education is incomplete without values, traditions, and a sense of social responsibility. These events nurture holistic development and instil pride, ethics, and cultural awareness among future leaders.

The encouraging placement progress and insights into contemporary national and global management trends reaffirm that our students are being prepared not just for jobs, but for dynamic careers in an evolving business environment.

I appreciate the sincere efforts of the student editorial team for thoughtfully compiling this issue. Their dedication reflects creativity, teamwork, and ownership-qualities essential for successful management professionals. I am confident that this edition will serve as an engaging chronicle of the month and inspire readers to actively participate in the vibrant academic life of IGSB.
